FINNS FORM NEW CABINET IN HOPE OF ENDING WAR

Roosevelt Asserts Russian Invasion 'Profound Shock'

Chief Executive Says All Peace Loving Peoples of World Condemn Red Acts in Finland
Calls It Tragedy

Says Military Force Shows Complete Disregard for Small Nations

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared today that Russia's invasion of Finland was a "profound shock" to the United States and jeopardized "the rights of mankind to self government."

In a formal statement read to a press conference, the Chief Executive said all peace loving peoples would "unanimously condemn this new resort to military force as the arbiter of international differences."

The President's statement in full follows:

"Profound Shock"

"The news of the Soviet naval and military bombings within Finnish territory has come as a profound shock to the government and people of the United States."

"Despite efforts made to solve the dispute by peaceful methods to which no reasonable objection could be offered, one power has chosen to resort to force of arms."

"It is tragic to see the policy of force spreading, and to realize that wanton disregard for law is still on the march."

"All peace-loving peoples in those nations that are still hoping for the continuance of relations throughout the world on the basis of law and order will unanimously condemn this new resort to military force as the arbiter of international differences."

"To the great misfortune of the world, the present trend to force makes insecure the independent existence of small nations in every continent and jeopardizes the rights of mankind to self government."

"The people and government of Finland have a long, honorable and wholly peaceful record which has won for them the respect and warm regard of the people and government of the United States."

Before the press conference the President asked Russia and Finland to pledge before the world that they would refrain from bombing defenseless civilians and unfortified cities.

Police Chief Honored at Retirement

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, retiring from active service last night, was honored by the Kingston Patrolmen's Association by being chosen an honorary member. Grouped about Chief Wood (center) are the new acting chief, Charles Phinney, and Edward J. Leonard, president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association on his right and Peter Keresman, president-elect of the association and state secretary of the P. B. A. and Lieutenant James V. Simpson.

Officers Honor Wood, Present Him With Retirement Gift

Serving as acting chief of police is no new experience for Charles Phinney, who today assumed his duties as head of Kingston's police department to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, for as senior lieutenant of the police department Chief Phinney has served as acting chief in other years while the chief was away on his annual vacation.

Chief Phinney is a son of the late James E. Phinney, who was mayor of Kingston during 1900-01. In his early years he was employed by the Cornell Steamboat Company on its fleet of Hudson river tug boats as a marine engineer.

On May, 1908, Chief Phinney was appointed ordinance officer of the city by the Common Council. His duties were to enforce the

Curfew Will Ring Tonight, But Nobody Will Give Heed And Survey Says It's Bunk

A custom which dates back as long as most everyone in this city remembers continues today with lost meaning.

Two taps on the local fire alarm system each evening have left this bell taps a tradition virtually unbroken since it first began sometime before the turn of the century.

It has prompted children of every generation to call out: "The curfew!" and there was a "day when the streets would be cleared of all but a few wandering adults."

Today, according to the Associated Press, the State Municipal Police Chiefs' Information and Training Extension Service, after a survey of 45 municipalities, found that only seven now have curfew ordinances and only two, St. Johnsville and Lake Placid, believe they keep children from the streets at night.

Kingston, the report shows, also has a curfew ordinance "never enforced with success," is convinced that too many parents have "practically left the responsibility of the conduct of children up to the police."

"There should be more home education and co-operation," the Kingston answer to the survey concludes.

The curfew rings in this city from October 1 to April 1 at 8 o'clock each evening and from April 1 to October 1 at 9 o'clock. The survey showed also that the curfew rings every night in North Tonawanda.

"But," says the up-state police chief, "Nobody pays any attention to it except to set their watches and clocks by it."

Penn. Yan's police authorities reported the curfew was finally stopped as "a farce," because when it rang, "Lots of children were at the show or some other event and not in any way inclined to go home."

Southern Ulster Farmers Now Receive Individual Locker Service for Food Products at Clintondale Storage Plant

Highland, Dec. 1.—The Clintondale Fruit Growers Cooperative, Inc., of Clintondale has now introduced the individual refrigerated food locker service which originated in the west and soon became popular in other sections. New York state has such plants in other sections which have operated successfully. People in the country who have their own gardens and raise their own poultry and other livestock will now be able to enjoy much of their perishable foods and food values no matter what the month.

The idea of having fresh frozen foods is known to many in Hudson Valley communities where stores handle such packaged fruits, vegetables, fish, meats and poultry. The cold storage locker plants can take care of just about the same foods as those distributed by the commercial frozen food companies. Each person rents a locker, or as many as he wants, brings in the

Finns Can't Get Passports From Soviet Officials

Legation Members Also Say Telephones Are Moved; No Reply Is Received to U. S. Offer

Appeal Is Made

Moscow, Dec. 1 (AP)—The spokesman of the Finnish legation said today that the Soviet Russian government had removed the legation's telephones and that the staff was still unable to obtain passports for its departure.

Officials of the legation were unable to say when they would leave for Helsinki and it was thought possible in some quarters that permission might be refused until the staff of the Soviet consulate in Helsinki had reached Moscow.

The United States embassy reported no reply had been received from Soviet officials on the offer of American good offices in the Finnish-Russian dispute. Some sources believed the reply would be delayed until Russia had disposed of the Finnish situation.

United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt was expected back at the embassy late today after a trip to Stockholm for dental attention.

Appeal for Estates

Soviet newspapers published what they called an appeal by the Finnish Communist party to take over the estates of large Finnish landowners. They said the appeal was issued by Radio.

The newspapers gave no details of fighting in the undeclared war between the Soviet Union and Finland in which Russia today charged Finland with having taken the initiative.

The "Finnish Communist appeal" charged that "imperialistic" Swedish and British interests had supported the Finnish government in an anti-Soviet campaign.

"Like Poland, it was a nest of anti-Soviet intrigues," it said.

"Such a government cannot guarantee the interests of Finland. It is a tool of foreign interests. . . workers are greatly oppressed."

"We appeal for the removal of the last capitalist government of Finland."

A statement circulated by Tass, official news agency, declared that the supreme command of the Red army ordered the invasion just after three attacks by Finnish border forces.

As a result of these "new armed provocations"—as Tass put it—Red forces crossed the frontier at 8 a. m. yesterday (midnight Wednesday, E. S. T.) on the Karelian isthmus and at several other points.

In connection with its allegation of Finnish responsibility for the conflict, the Tass announcement also said that in the first day's operations Russian forces advanced 10 to 15 kilometers (6 1/2 to 9 1/2 miles) into Finland while reconnoitering planes bombed airfields at Helsinki and Viipuri (Viborg).

This war news was made public following a midnight radio broadcast which gave Russian listeners the first official word of the invasion—a simple statement that Red troops had marched into Finland.

Thus there was a 16-hour lapse between the start of the invasion and the first public acknowledgment in Russia.

Wage Increase

Detroit, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Briggs Manufacturing Company announced today a general wage increase of three cents an hour for its more than 16,000 hourly employees. The action, following a similar increase granted Wednesday by Chrysler Corporation, was expected to remove any hitch in the resumption of operations following the 54-day labor dispute in Chrysler plants. W. P. Brown, president of Briggs, said the increase was put into effect Thursday "in keeping with our policy to pay wages comparable to those being paid in the industry."

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—The position of the Treasury November 29. Receipts $10,389,928.43. Expenditures $25,812,250.20. Net balance $2,167,999.27. Working balance included $1,464,179,361.00. Customs receipts for month $27,541,933.25. Receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $2,163,925,750.71. Expenditures $3,861,230,614.85. Excess of expenditures $1,697,304,864.14. Gross debt $41,301,290,568.66. Increase over previous day $4,784,894.00. Gold assets $17,346,527,317.97.

Where Russia Moved in on Finland

This map indicates developments of the first day of Russia's undeclared war on Finland, which came abruptly after Russia denounced a Russian-Finnish non-aggression pact and broke off diplomatic relations when Finland would not bow to Soviet territorial demands. Reports from the north said Russian forces had reached the Norwegian border along the Arctic ocean.

Nazi Agency Says 194 Vessels Sunk By Subs or Mines

III-Fated Ships, States DNB Were England Bound; Total Losses Must Be Higher, Source Says

Berlin, Dec. 1 (AP)—DNB, official German news agency, reported today that from the beginning of the war to November 28, 194 vessels, totaling 735,768 tons—both allied and neutral—headed for Great Britain, had been sunk by German submarines or mines.

DNB said the sinking of 162 ships—32 of them neutral—totaling 639,689 tons was confirmed by German reports.

Non-German sources, the agency said, disclosed an additional 32 ships of 96,079 tons total, half of them neutral, representing 39,321 tons.

The statement listed 150,887 tons of shipping as tankers and said the average was 7,500 tons per ship—in other words, about 20 tankers.

DNB insisted the total losses must be considerably larger, however, charging that the British admiralty had not published all losses, especially those along the British coast.

No Comment on Russia

Authorized sources declined to comment further on the Soviet Russian-Finnish situation. They said yesterday that Germany was "sympathetic to Russia."

Col. Gen. Walter Von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the German army, left for the upper Rhine sector of the Siegfried Line to inspect troops.

Today's army communique told of "feeble artillery and scouting activity" on the western front and said bad weather hampered aerial reconnaissance to the extent that four flying boats were forced by the weather to alight on the North Sea. The planes were damaged but the crews were saved.

The authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland urged neutral nations to resist the British-French blockade of Germany, to be extended Monday to seizure of German exports even in neutral ships.

The commentary did not specify what action it felt the neutrals should take but observed, "Germany watches their attitude with greatest attention."

The German view seemed to be that the total blockade would hurt neutrals as much as Germany and that they must share with the Reich the responsibility for keeping the seas open to commerce, even at the risk of having their ships seized by the British.

Neutrals failing to take such an energetic stand, it was indicated, would be suspected of anti-German leanings.

Soviet Make New Attack On Nation

Leaders Inimical to Reds Are Dropped; Warplanes Machine-Gun Civilians in Helsinki

Ryti Is Named

Governor of Finland's Bank Becomes Nation's New Premier

Helsinki, Dec. 1 (AP)—(6:50 p. m. 11:50 a. m., E.S.T.)—Finland formed a new government tonight, dropping leaders who had been assailed by Moscow, as Russian armed forces renewed and extended their attack upon the country.

While the new government was being formed, Russian bombing planes swooped low over the capital and machine-gunned civilians in the streets. Viborg and other cities also were raided.

Russian attacks extended from Finland's extreme arctic tip, where soldiers were reported dropped by parachute from warplanes to seize important towns, to Finland's extreme southwestern corner, where Red warships opened a blasting onslaught against the strategic port of Hangoe, guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

Finnish defense batteries of the Russian fortress were reported to have sent one of the attacking warships to the bottom of the gulf, and the fortress was said to be still holding out this evening despite furious shelling from the sea and bombardment from the air.

New Premier

The new premier is Risto Ryti, 50-year-old governor of the Bank of Finland. His foreign minister is Vaino Tanner, socialist finance minister in the outgoing government and regarded as friendly to Russia. Included also, as minister without portfolio, is Juhani Paasikivi, former premier experienced in Russian affairs and head of the delegation which had been conferring in Moscow over Russia's territorial demands.

Dropped altogether were Premier Aimo Cajander, and his foreign minister, Elias Erkko, both of whom had been attacked bitterly by Moscow as trying to lead Finland into war against Russia.

Russian warplanes bombed Finland's principal ports on her south coast, including Viborg, large sections of which were set aflame yesterday, and Kotka, about 65 miles east of Helsinki.

10 Planes Downed

Ten Russian bombers were reported shot down at Viborg.

The air attack was carried all the way to Abo (Turku), on Finland's west coast 250 miles from the Russian frontier, where it was reported civilians were machine-gunned as they were in Helsinki. No estimate of the day's casualties in the Capital or elsewhere was available.

Hundreds of Russian prisoners were reported captured on the Akrelian Isthmus, where the Red army was invading overland. (Moscow reported an advance of from 6 to 10 miles here yesterday.)

Helsinki newspaper offices received reports from many sections of the Capital that citizens were being machine-gunned from Russian planes in the early afternoon.

M. Heikki-Klemetti, director of a Finnish male chorus which recently toured the United States, said a low-flying Russian plane had machine-gunned his suburban home.

There was no news of Jan Sibelius, Finland's noted composer who came to live in the Capital November 2 in order, he said, to be with his people in a time of stress. Civilians at that time were being taken out of the Capital.

Sibelius Reported Hurt

(One Stockholm newspaper printed an unconfirmed report that Sibelius had been injured. Finnish quarters in Sweden discounted the report.)

The new premier is 50 years old an ex-minister of finance, has

Pictured as Overlord

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Federal prosecutors today pictured Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, kingpin fur racketeer, as an overlord of the underworld who also dominated an international $10,000,000 narcotics smuggling syndicate. Assistant Attorney Joseph P. Martin told the jury trying Buchalter on charges of conspiracy to violate the narcotics laws that the syndicate used attractive young women agents to smuggle in the contraband. Each woman was chosen for her charm and personality. Martin said and received $2,000 plus expenses to make the trip to Europe and bring back trunks loaded with heroin, cocaine, opium and other narcotics. The trunks were passed by bribed customs officials, the prosecutor charged.

Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—An unidentified milkman was the hero today of an early morning fire that swept a two-story apartment and store building. He first awakened the six members of storekeeper Augustus Cosentino's family by pounding on the door, then summoned firemen. Returning, he climbed to the roof of an adjoining garage and leaped 18 feet to the ground with the eight-year-old Joseph Cosentino in his arms. After that he placed a ladder against the building and helped the other Cosentinos escape. By the time the firemen arrived, he was on his way, hurrying to catch up with his deliveries.

Artillerymen at Dinner

Last night at the Staten Island Inn, the Civil Association of First Battalion Headquarters Battery held its first annual dinner and at the speakers' table were Captain Ernest A. Steuding, commanding officer of Battery A, Captain Carlton S. Preston, former commander of Headquarters Battery, Colonel Otto Thiede, Newburgh Regional Commander of the 156th Field Artillery; Captain Frederick Coombs, commander of Headquarters Battery, First Battalion and Charles N. Behrens, regional adjutant of the 156th.

New Taxpayers' Officers

At the meeting of the Ulster County Taxpayers Council last night, attended by 75 men and women, officers were elected for the ensuing year. George Mutari, of Saugerties center seated, was chosen as president. On his right is George Boettiger of New Paltz, secretary-treasurer, and to his left is Mrs. Nellie V. Conin of Kingston, a member of the state legislative committee. In the rear, left to right, are Herbert S. Sears, Marlborough state legislative committee member; Jacob Schreiber of New Paltz, vice-president of the council, and Fred Richter, also a member of the state committee.

County Taxpayers Council Dinner at Stuyvesant Hotel

At the annual meeting and dinner of the Ulster County Taxpayers' Council held at the Stuyvesant Hotel Thursday night, George Mutari of Saugerties was elected president, succeeding Herbert Sears of Marlborough. Jacob Schreiber of New Paltz was elected vice-president and George Boettiger, also of New Paltz, was named secretary-treasurer. The meeting was attended by 67 taxpayers and guests from various parts of the county.

Resolutions presented by Mr. Mutari again stressed matters which long have been advocated by the council. One called for an extension of the mortgage moratorium, the other asked for payment of county taxes in two installments.

Mr. Mutari claimed that many home owners cannot meet demands for mortgage payments at this time and do not come within the provisions of the HOLC, while real estate is at a low valuation. Lower payments and interest also are asked for.

As to taxes it was stated that a large proportion of the income received by Ulster county people depends upon the summer boarding business, that money is more plentiful at that time and that property owners should be permitted to pay, without penalty, half of their tax assessment in the late summer.

Jacob Schreiber alleged that the county had lost since 1910 about 15,000 in population and he ascribed this loss to high taxation. He praised the town of New Paltz for the manner in which it was run and the attempt of the town board, of which he is a member, to give the people the most for their tax dollar. He referred to the recent purchase of a fire truck for $5,600 although $6,000 had been voted for that purpose. He claimed that in some towns politicians would have pocketed the $400 which New Paltz saved and suggested that they might even have asked for an appropriation of $7,000 or $8,000 to buy a machine "which is not as good as the one we have."

Walter Donnarumma of the Sixth ward also paid his compliments to politicians, especially "professional politicians who are Democrats one year and Republicans the next and who can't make a living any other way. He protested against constantly increasing taxation on homes and asked why home owners should be called upon to support political machines of any brand.

Other speakers were retiring President Herbert Sears, former Assemblyman Edward Young of Milton, George Boettiger of New Paltz, Fred Richter of Kingston. Sickles Entertainers of Saugerties furnished music during the dinner and throughout the evening.

Sloan Trial Goes On

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The prosecution sought today to prove Newburgh City and Town Welfare Commissioner John L. Sloan "conspired to defraud the welfare district through issuance of false relief food orders." Addressing the jury at the opening of Sloan's trial yesterday, Assistant Attorney General Raymond P. Whearty, who directed an 11-month inquiry into the affairs of the city and Orange county, said he would seek to prove Sloan "conspired" with Joseph Friedman, a Newburgh grocer, has pleaded guilty to a charge of presenting fraudulent claims. Timothy J. Cannon, welfare auditor and accountant, was the state's first witness but only preliminary questioning was completed before court adjourned.

Roosevelt Asserts Russian Invasion 'Profound Shock'

ity act were foremost, but reports in some well-advised quarters were that application of the law to the Russian-Finnish situation might be delayed.

The statute provides that it shall be invoked whenever the President, or congress, finds that a state of war exists between two or more foreign nations and that this country's security requires invocation of the act. Mr. Roosevelt never has invoked the neutrality law in regard to the Chinese-Japanese war, and some persons believed he might pursue a similar course in the Finnish-

Soviet dispute.

(When the neutrality act is invoked, a belligerent must take title to American goods before they leave these shores and must provide for their transportation in non-American vessels.)

Finland, with little means of manufacturing her own fighting planes, bought almost $500,000 of war equipment in this country during October. Most of the orders were for airplane engines. The Soviet has been making nominal purchases in this country and steadily has been seeking to develop her own aircraft industry.

Another subject of speculation was the question whether this government might recall Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt from Moscow in protest against the Russian invasion, or whether it might even break off diplomatic relations with Russia.

Some legislators have suggested both courses, but the state department and the White House have declined to say whether either might be taken.

There were numerous expressions of resentment over Russia's military action against the Finns. Procope received a telegram from Bishop James E. Freeman of the Washington Cathedral (Episcopalian), expressing abhorrence at "the unrighteous and brutal assault upon your noble and courageous people."

land, small in area and population, is mighty in valor and in her Christian ideals.

"Every American feels a sense of righteous indignation that in our modern world such a monstrous crime could be committed against an unoffending nation."

Texas Technological College has established an art-lending library where students may rent pictures to hang upon the walls of dormitory rooms.

Would Drive Out Bund

Union City, N. J., Dec. 1 (AP)—An Americanization committee headed by Mayor Harry J. Thoutrot put the German-American Bund today at the top of its list of "un-American elements" it intended to drive out of the city. The committee was formed at a meeting of 29 war veterans, civic and service organizations at city hall—across the street from a tavern where the Bund has a headquarters. Committee speakers last night doubted the status of the headquarters as the Bund's national center but all agreed it was for the state.

Based on past experience, they say, the level of prices to be expected in any gold standard country during the present war will depend on the world value of gold and on the value of that country's currency in terms of gold.

RACES WAKING UP

The supposedly benighted "heathen" who "bow down to wood and stone" are getting wise to us and our ways. Alexander Paul of Indianapolis, an executive secretary of oriental missions, says:

"The people of India, China and Japan have come to see that the white man is not only no better than they are, but in many cases worse. Oriental leaders are beginning to realize that, given an equal chance, the mentality and brains of races the world over are about the same."

On this latter point, concerning native intelligence rather than actual level of culture, experts have greatly changed their view in recent years. The question was frankly discussed in a recent "Town Meeting of the Air."

Of three specialists in this field, one maintained that there was no real difference in the natural capacity of races, but that seeming differences of character and talent were caused by their surroundings. The second expert held that while no basic differences had been proved, further research might find some; and the third said practically the same thing.

All agreed that the subordinate races should have a fair chance to develop their possibilities, for their own sake and for the benefit of mankind in general.

HISTORIC CORNER

The reasons for a lot of our national troubles in this century is that we turned a corner in 1900, explains Dr. George T. Hunt of Cleveland College. The American frontier vanished.

That frontier had made democracy easy to operate. "It automatically solved all the problems of government, just by being there. It was a place where surplus people could go. If times got tough, you needed only to sit tight for at most three years, until the frontier relieved the pressure. For democracy it was a safety valve, and if you've got a safety valve you can go to sleep beside your boiler."

In times past, he says, the government really did go to sleep. In previous depressions it had become traditional that the government should take as little part as possible in the economic life of the nation. And that was wise when there was an automatic remedy. But no policy is wise forever.

So in this century, he continues, we've had Theodore Roosevelt's "New Nationalism" and Woodrow Wilson's "New Freedom" and Franklin Roosevelt's "New Deal", all devised to solve the new problems forced on the nation by the lack of free land. And "there isn't enough difference between the philosophies of these three men," declares Professor Hunt, "to wad a shotgun."

There is not yet in sight, he says, any new resource or activity in the economic field to substitute for the vanished frontier. But he isn't much worried, because he thinks the "declining birthrate" and "other natural forces" are working in the country's favor.

GOLDEN AGE FOR EUROPE

Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech last Sunday, to the British Empire and the world, as a challenge and also a view of Utopia.

He sets for Britain and her allies a double task—to defeat the enemy on land and sea, and to defeat "that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks continually to dominate other peoples by force." He also wants to abolish persecution of minorities within states, and to restore faith in the pledged word of statesmen.

This obviously is quite a job, but good morals and good propaganda. It should help to win by giving the British people the moral justification they need for the war, and by encouraging the revolt of oppressed minorities in Germany.

But the big thing in the speech was the picture the premier painted of a new Europe. When the democracies shall have suppressed autocracy. He expects the nations then to "approach their difficulties with good will and mutual tolerance."

The rivals of Europe are to sit down and work things out as neighbors on equal terms, with the noncombatant neighbors helping. Free flow of trade is to be restored, and every country will have the right to choose its own form of internal government as long as it doesn't bother its neighbors.

This prospectus seems to go farther than anything Woodrow Wilson proposed. There would be a sort of United States of Europe, such as many prophets foretold. It is a wonderful dream, to be met with sympathy and hope rather than cynicism, because of the world's great need of peace and cooperation.

It will seem more practical, however, when Britain clears up the situation in India, and when the allied democracies begin to tell what sacrifices of territory and raw materials they will make for the have-not nations, to inaugurate this Golden Age.

ONE MAN'S FUN

The lumberjack-cowboy who won the first prize in the men's group of the third national crocheting contest sounds almost too good to be true. It seems that he started to crochet at the age of five years and enjoyed it so much that he kept right on for the next ten years.

As a fifteen-year-old lad he "couldn't take it" when other kids made fun of him for his fancy work. Ridicule made him give up his artistic hobby for ten years. At the end of that decade, however, the urge was still so strong within him that he tossed fear of others' opinions aside and proceeded to crochet busily for his own enjoyment.

"I decided that those who wanted to laugh could," he says. "Crocheting was a lot more fun than poker, drinking or rough-housing."

It is always refreshing to read of some one who isn't afraid to do the thing he enjoys most and does well.

Most of the women buying those nifty new things for the kitchen don't realize that they're patronizing "technological appliances in household equipment."

Charlie McCarthy tops all the radio personalities in a popularity contest, and it isn't the first time that a wooden head got away with it.

It would take three or four Thanksgivings to do full justice to our national blessings.

Happy days are here again, with the industrial cities full of black smoke.

Exciting news from Washington: They say President Roosevelt is going to do nothing.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

A great amount of interest was aroused when the Drs. Kirby of Baltimore removed a birth mark from one of the Dionne quintuplets by the use of radium.

There has been so much discussion about birth marks as to whether or not they can be removed, that a late classification of these marks and their treatment should be helpful to patients and physicians.

In the Journal of Pediatrics (children's diseases), Dr. E. Young gives a summary of the kinds and the treatment of birth marks, together with the most successful method of treatment in each case.

There are three main types, namely the capillary or port wine stain, the strawberry growth, and the tumor or lump containing blood. Treatment should be given according to the type of tumor, its location, and size. The simple radium treatment of the back of the head, neck and forehead disappears of themselves and no treatment is needed. The treatment of the large port wine mark is unsatisfactory and at best radium or snow substitutes a white scar for the red mark. The removal of the small port wine marks by surgery offers the best results.

Strawberry growths on the body and limbs and on the face, when small and suitably located, should be removed by surgery.

When the growth is large and involves the facial features, surface radiation, electro-decussation (drying it up by electricity or carbon dioxide snow) are effective.

The large bloodfilled growths are best injected with the solutions commonly used to destroy hemorrhoids or piles.

I believe the above information which classifies birth marks and growths and outlines best treatment for each class should help physician and patient to come to a decision on what is best to do in any particular case—leave the mark alone or use the particular method of treatment outlined above. This should be done with confidence and hope to many and in the cases where treatment is likely to be a failure, will avoid much disappointment and expense.

RAINING MOMENTUM!

BABSON ON BUSINESS

Business Hits Ten-Year Peak
Babson Says America Afraid of Prosperity

New York, Dec. 1.—Business closed November by sweeping up to the highest level for any month in ten years! Without adjustment for our increase in population, activity is now only 6 per cent below the all-time highs of 1929 and is 93 per cent above the depression low of March, 1933. Business sentiment, however, continues uncertain and confused. In 1929, the business world thought we could never have another depression. In 1939, the same group thinks we can never have another boom.

It is an even decade since the Golden Era collapsed. In the years after 1929, business took the sharpest and longest drop in history. As measured by the Babsonchart, it power-divided from 123 to 39 in the short space of three and a half years. Stocks crumbled from an average price of $381 a share to $41 a share. In 1933, the trend changed. Since then we have been in a zig-zag, upswing. We had a sharp rise and then a sharp drop; another brisk rise and another discouraging set-back. There were the booms of 1933, 1935 to 1937, and 1938. Each of these was followed by "crashlands."

Stocks Far Behind
We are now in our fourth boom. Business has whirled up to within hailing distance of the 1929 peaks, not taking into account—as I say—the gain in population. Stock prices—which measure business sentiment pretty accurately—are lagging far behind. The average stock is today selling at $150 a share against the same price a year ago at $185 at the 1937 high. Business, however, is 16 per cent above last November and even a notch higher than the 1937 peak. During the past six months the cheeriest communique in ten years have come from our industrial front. Yet, no one seems to be very happy about it.

Of course, we still have one tremendous problem on our hands, unemployment. There are perhaps as many out of work now as at the bottom of the depression. How can this be? Because we have been madly substituting machines for men during the past half decade to hold down costs. We have been driven to this because of labor union activities, rising taxes, and an unfriendly administration. Our jobless problem is a big one. Probably 3,000,000 of our idle workers are unemployed. The remainder, however, should be able to find jobs as business continues to increase.

Why We Spent $30,000,000,000
For years, economists and politicians promised us that if we could start business spiraling upward it would continue to rise under its own momentum. The forecast was that if we put people back to work in the heavy industries, they would buy more goods, stores would place new orders with manufacturers, factories would hire more workers. These new employees, in turn, would buy more goods, and around the circle again. The public was so convinced that this upward spiral would bring back prosperity that it has allowed the administration to spend $30,000,000,000 priming the pump, inflating the balloon, starting the spiral.

Today, the upward spiral is under way. The heavy industries are finally going full-blast. The majority, however, fear that the current upswing is just a war baby boom. True, the German invasion of Poland ignited the spark. So far, however, the war has neither helped nor hurt American business on balance. The 1940 elections, labor troubles, rising taxes and similar hobgoblins are blinding business men to the best industrial news in a decade. Ten years of depression have taken their toll. With business rising, heavy industries booming, earnings good, stocks and commodities cheap, business men are forgetting fundamentals as completely as they ignored them in 1929.

Action and Reaction
The Law of Action and Reaction is working 100 per cent. Ten years ago I was laughed off the platform for predicting an impending crash. "This is a new era. Depressions are a thing of the past," Babson is getting old. This was the word that was passed around. Stocks and commodities were sky-high in those days. Bonds were going begging. There were two chickens in every pot. There were plenty of signposts pointing to what lay ahead, but these were ingeniously brushed aside.

Today, the situation is just the reverse. Stocks are low in comparison with earnings. Many commodities sell for less than it costs to produce them. Bonds are sky-high. There are two pots for every chicken. After ten years of hard times those same people who could foresee no more depressions in 1929 can today see no more booms. Five years ago these people wept over the lag of the heavy industries. Now the steel mills, car foundries, machine shops are booming. Still these gloom-mongers are worriedly telling their friends: "Business is good, but it can't last. The good old days are gone forever."

"Lost Horizon"
We have had depression and doldrums so long in America that we have come to think of hard times as normal times. America is just as afraid of prosperity today as she was of depression ten years ago. My guess is that those who believe that we can never have another boom will turn out to be just as wrong by 1945 as those who in 1929 believed that we could never have another depression. Interesting as this speculation is, the practical person must concern himself primarily with the outlook for the next six months—not the next six years!

Overlay Glass Process Was Used by Romans

Overlay or cased glass was a product of the Nineteenth century. But although different in technique it stemmed back, artistically at least, to the colorful enameled glass of the Romans which they first fashioned some 2,000 years ago. This process the Arabs later perfected and the Syrian glass of Damascus and Aleppo presently found its way to Europe, where Venetian and later Bohemian glassmakers also learned the process. By the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries the latter were fashioning such elaborate and beautiful pieces as the Reichsdiadem, a large beaker enameled with the double-headed eagle of the Holy Roman empire and the costs of arms of its dependencies.

Glass enameling, however, involved not only the use of many colors but several processes of execution, writes Richmond Huntley in American Collector. So by 1820 the Bohemians found a relatively simple way to produce a decorative and pleasing effect by substituting a single color for the many. The process was quite different. But briefly, the steps in its making were as follows: Over clear or colored glass a contrasting shell was applied while the whole was white hot. Then the glass was annealed, after which it went through a grinding and polishing process whereby a pattern was cut through the outer shell, thus revealing the contrasting color beneath. Ruby red, blue, green, canary and sometimes clear with opaque overlay were used.

Laymen Ask if There is One Law for Employer and Another for Employee

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 1.—Is there one kind of law for the employer today and another kind for the employee, and are new members of the federal judiciary appointed by the Roosevelt administration going to interpret statutes hereafter so as to favor one political or economic group rather than another? These questions will be asked by laymen who are finding it difficult to understand how the commerce clause of the constitution can be interpreted by the supreme court to mean that nearly every business of industry is engaged in interstate commerce when it comes to applying the Wagner labor relations law, but labor unions can escape prosecution under anti-trust laws on the ground that their "sit-down" strikes do not restrain interstate commerce.

The decision of three judges of the circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia, all appointed under the Roosevelt administration, was unanimous in saying that a "sit-down" strike did not restrain interstate commerce. This opinion was rendered in spite of the fact that the judges of the same court who resigned or retired recently had ruled that the same "sit-down" strike was conspiracy to interrupt commerce and restrain the shipment of materials in violation of the federal laws governing restraint of trade.

It is interesting to note that the original decision in Philadelphia which said that the "sit-down" strikes restrained commerce was rendered on the ground that the supreme court of the United States, in upholding the Wagner Act, had defined broadly the commerce clause of the constitution. It is interesting also to record that, when the supreme court of the United States upheld the Wagner Act, it did so by referring to a famous piece of litigation known as the "Second Coronado" case, in which the power of congress to punish those who interfered with shipments of a coal mine was upheld.

In other words, the supreme court of the United States has been asked to compel collective bargaining, because absence of this means strikes and interruptions to commerce and points to previously upheld power of congress to punish for interferences with commerce growing out of labor disputes. ## Daily Worker Says Roosevelt To Blame for Finns' Plight; Circulars Are Out in Boston

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—The Daily Worker, leading Communist organ in this country, in a front-page editorial today said "the plight of the Finnish people . . . can be laid at the doorstep of President Roosevelt."

The newspaper also charged that the United States, Great Britain and France were using Finland as a pawn to foment an imperialistic war to destroy Soviet Russia.

(In Boston, the Communist party of Massachusetts distributed 100,000 circulars defending the invasion of Finland and accusing "the officials of the semi-Fascist government of Finland" of provoking war deliberately.)

"The Red army is on the march for peace and socialism."

COLDS, ACHES, GRIPPE TAKE BARACOLS

and is dealing powerful blows against world imperialism," the circulars said.

The two-column editorial in the Daily Worker said it was "the sheerest hypocrisy for the press to pretend moral indignation at a little country engaged with a big country like the Soviet Union."

"They know that behind the Finnish ruling cliques stand the mighty forces of British and American imperialism, goading, encouraging, supporting the hostile acts of Finland."

The editorial asserted Prime Minister Chamberlain of England had tried in vain to get Germany to start a war with the Soviet government.

"For this plan," it continued, "he (Chamberlain) paid Fascism with the bodies of Spain, Czechoslovakia and Austria, even as he was ready to pay with Poland."

Declaring Chamberlain now is operating an anti-Soviet war plan through Finland, the paper said: "The present Finnish rulers have been given the assignment by world imperialism, London, Paris and Washington, to transform the present imperialist English-German war into the anti-Soviet war which was organized by Chamberlain and Hitler at Munich and shattered by the non-aggression pact when Hitler discovered that the USSR was too strong to be attacked."

"Into this war abyss, the American people are being drawn by the Wall Street forces which now speak through the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration."

The editorial said the "plight of the Finnish people . . . can be laid at the doorstep of President Roosevelt whose recent direct intervention gave the Finnish ruling circles the go-ahead signal for their collaboration with the British war intrigues."

SHOKAN

Shokan, Nov. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wackers of Richmond Hill spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richter. The couple were accompanied back to Long Island by Mrs. Mary Thomas, mother of Mrs. Richter, who has been here for the past several months. Mrs. Thomas has quite recovered from injuries sustained in a fall down stairs at the Richter home last summer.

Mrs. Egbert Boice and Miss Grace Davis, both of whom are natives of Olive, were among the Kingston residents attending the funeral services for Mrs. Charles Giles Tuesday afternoon.

Sergeant J. Cunningham of Saugerties was in Shokan last week in connection with a reported burglary at one of the summer places near the village.

Max Meyer, well known Roundout cattle buyer, was here on business Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Meyer, who has been coming to this section for many years, related how he used to go to Canada to buy cattle, a practice which he discontinued when the import tariff on livestock became too high for profitable results.

William Jordan, one of the south shore's most successful dairy farmers, was a caller in the hub of the reservoir country Tuesday. A sprained ankle has partially incapacitated Mr. Jordan from his farm duties the past few days.

The Ladies' Aid social planned for Friday evening has been postponed until some time in December.

A letter written from Mrs. Cornwell Longyear to Shokan relatives states that the Longyears have had a successful season on their ranch near Albuquerque, N. M. Their poultry took 35 awards, including 17 firsts, at the state fair this fall, and they raised 35 turkeys as well as good crops of strawberries and several varieties of fruit. Mr. and Mrs. Longyear were school teachers in Ulster county for many years.

A marriage of December 1, 1878, was that which united Aida Happy of South Woodstock to Anis Terwilliger of West Hurley. The ceremony was performed at the Shokan M. E. Church parsonage by the Rev. Thomas Bond, witnesses to the nuptials being Philip Happy and Louisa Shultis.

Mrs. Philip Chopay of Springfield, L. I., was a visitor last week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Giles.

Fred and Joe DeWitt, north Boulevard bachelor brothers, plan to go to Newburgh to work.

The bridge club met Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs.

FINNS BUILD BOMB SHELTERS IN THE NICK OF TIME

Finnish workmen are shown here rushing work on bomb shelters the government started throwing up in Helsinki when the Russian invasion appeared imminent. They were just in the nick of time, for the little nation's capital was one of the first targets of Red bombs as Russia moved against Finland by land, air and sea.

Fred Adsit on the middle Boulevard.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles Giles were conducted in the Shokan Reformed Church Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. August Paus, pastor of the church. The hymns, "Will There be any Stars in My Crown" and "The Old Rugged Cross" were sung by Mrs. Clayton Burgher.

Mrs. Clyde Winchell and Homer Markle, Jr. Mrs. Giles for many years was a faithful communicant of the local church.

Arnold Dickenson of Poughkeepsie was a business caller in the village Monday.

There is a good flow of water at the Esopus creek intake of the Ashokan reservoir this week. The water continues to rise in the west basin, where several of the dry-spell islands have become submerged. The east basin is lower than it was last week.

Mrs. Emily Hansen is around again after having been ill with a severe cold.

Reports are current that surveyors have been at work along the original state road line which was laid out many years ago at a higher elevation than the present Route 28 stretch of highway through this section.

Mrs. May Giles, formerly of this place, was in Shokan Tuesday. Fred DeWitt has laid stone steps between his residence and the north boulevard.

Leslie Eignor of Woodstock was a business caller in Shokan Tuesday.

William Loos of Inwood, L. I., motored up to the James Carpenter camp Monday for a few days of deer hunting. "Bill," who is the brother of Mrs. Carpenter, has hunted deer in four states and has not failed to bring home a buck in many years. Mr. Loos is a professional aviator now engaged in emergency work at Roosevelt Field.

Chapter 48

The Shining Knife

THE man came back through the doorway and went back to the little room. Tuck was bathed in cold, icy perspiration. Her heart was pounding in suffocating beats. She could hear it distinctly. He lifted his head and stared at her. Could he hear it too?

Bump... bump... bump. His face was black with wrath. He looked up at the ceiling. He came over to her swiftly, and glared down at her. "Was he at home when you left?" he demanded in a desperate whisper.

She would not answer. She could not answer, for the moment he had spoken he put his hand tightly over her mouth, and then picked up a long roll of bandage and gagged her.

Suddenly the man smiled to himself again. He went noiselessly to the cabinet and took a little bottle from it with a thick pad of cloth. He went to the end of the room, she couldn't see, and she heard nothing but a wave of fresh sweet night air poured over her. Then it was gone, and the heavy air of the room settled around her again. The gag hurt badly and it was so dry. Her mouth was so dry. She twisted her head and chewed at the gag, but it would not budge. She pulled at her wrists until the bonds cut into them, but she could not move.

That would be Michael, alone up there. Alone, come to find her. She couldn't warn him, Michael. The light went out. The world was black again, forgotten.

The sweet night air revived her. He had left the door open, this time when he came in, and a cool breeze swept gently over her face. The water in the pan bubbled and sang.

She turned her head. There was a sort of wide bench against the wall on her left-hand side, opposite the his cabinet. On the bench Michael was half sitting, propped against the wall. By the time Michael opened his eyes, his hands were bound firmly behind his back; but worse than that, his wrists were tied to a ring in the wall.

Michael had seen Tuck lying there on the table. He had stared at her with terrified eyes for a moment, and then he had smiled at her, his own dear impish smile. Tuck's heart skipped a beat, and then the warm blood flowed through her veins again and she felt alive. Her brain worked again.

The man spoke. "You were alone?"

"Oh, no," Michael said. "Do you think I'm crazy?"

"Indeed? You lie well, Forrester."

"And you? What am I to call you? Murchison?"

"Whatever you like. It won't make the slightest difference. Luck has played into my hands tonight," he said exultantly.

"Yes, indeed. I had thought of something of this sort, but I hadn't dreamed I should be able to manage it. Once or twice I was almost afraid of you, Forrester. Afraid that you would discover the truth, perhaps, and so end my work. It is very important work. If the world could but realize it, it is a great thing I am endeavoring to do for humanity."

"Now I am going to finish my experiment, Forrester, and you shall have the pleasure of watching me."

Tuck shut her eyes. There was a long silence. Then Michael spoke, and his voice was terrible.

"You devil!" he said. "No, you are wrong, Forrester, this must be done. For years I have been on the verge of this discovery. Again and again I have been thwarted by the stupidity of authorities, by the hide-bound bitterness of associates. I must do it. I must do it, do you understand? His voice dropped almost to a whisper as he stood there by the kettle, his hand reaching out toward his instruments.

Life

"FORRESTER, do you know what I am searching for? Life! Do you understand that? Life! The Vital Force. The thing that preachers call the Soul. Soul!" He was breathing heavily. He moved aside and pulled up to the stove a small wheeled table, glass-covered. On it he laid a sterile, white cloth; then he took from the water that tray of shining, keen-bladed knives.

"I know where to find it, Forrester. I know exactly where, in the brain, it lies. Do you know why they have never discovered it? Because, when they look for it in dead bodies, it is gone. Because, when they look for it in anesthetized bodies, it is dissipated. It cannot be captured. It is too small, too weak. But I know the way."

Tuck's heart was in her eyes, staring at Michael. Michael was staring at his bonds, twisting, turning, his face the color of paper. His eyes were blazing.

The man at the table took a test-tube from a rack and laid it carefully beside the shining array before him. He was working very deliberately, very carefully.

"I have been handicapped," he went on. "I tried to work with animals because of the absurd prejudice against the risking of human life. How foolish that is. There are literally millions of lives that would be better sacrificed to science. If they had given me only a dozen subjects to work on, I should have been successful long ago. Do you know what it would mean? It would mean that we could create perfect beings in the laboratory. Perfect—a race of gods. The operation, of course, is very painful. Very painful, indeed. You can understand that it must be."

"You will hang for this," Michael said. His voice was calm, and he had stopped struggling. He sat quiet. He must have found out that it was useless.

"I doubt it. You see, after tonight, I shall do nothing more. This is the final test. Once before I thought I could say that, but unfortunately, my subject struggled rather violently before I could induce him to come here, and I was forced to give him a severe blow. He has been very ill ever since—rather, he is quite now, but in no physical condition as yet, to stand the operation. I have had to keep him drugged in order to keep him from escaping or making a noise, and his nerves are not in a good state at all. Still, I expected to use him eventually. But I shall not have to now. If the operation fails on your wife, and anything unforeseen happens, there still will be yourself."

He made a little courtly bow. "Two such young and healthy specimens, both mentally and physically, are all that any scientist could desire. If the experiment fails twice tonight, I shall merely set fire to this basement room and leave it as it is. I shall be convinced that mine is not the hand to carry out the research. But we will not fail—tonight."

He was ready. He wheeled the little table over close to Tuck. He pulled open a drawer in the table and took out a white mask which he unrolled from its sterile wrappings and laid across his face. "Perhaps," he said to Michael, "you will find this a little trying since this lady is your wife. But you can scarcely fail to find it interesting. With this knife I shall make the first incision, a small three-cornered one at the base of the brain. But first, of course, I must sterilize the area."

"You Devil!"

HE turned her head gently away from Michael and she felt his hands at the back of her neck. He untied the gag and took it off. "It is in my way," he said regretfully. Her mouth was stiff. Then she felt the coolness of water on the back of her head, and in a moment, the scrape of a razor.

She heard him move. She knew he was still trying to break loose. He never could. Her own bonds cut into her wrists and ankles.

The man laid down the razor. He picked up the shining knife.

And in that instant Michael threw the severed bonds from his hands and sprang.

The man gave a cry like the roar of a wild beast as he went down beneath Michael. Tuck did not see that battle on the cement floor, but as she lay bound and helpless on the table she pictured it and agonized for Michael. The other man was bigger, and very strong. He had a grip like steel.

"Michael, Michael," she called in agony.

The other man was bigger and very strong, but Michael was fighting for Tuck and for her life. He got on top at last and pounded that dark head again and again on the cement; and then he dragged him and tied him, in turn, to the ring in the wall, where he stood with triumphant blazing eyes.

"You devil!" Michael panted. And then he turned to Tuck.

As he lifted her tenderly in his arms from the table she clung to him and choked out, "Michael... how... I can't believe... Michael darling! Oh, you are really—"

"Why, sweetheart, my fingers were free, d'you see, and I was sort of half sitting there... and my jackknife was in my pants. I nearly died getting it out—and cutting those damn things—for fear he'd hear."

And at that moment two things happened. The first was the appearance of an apparition from that inner room, the figure of a tall, ghastly pale man with cadaverous cheeks and sunken eyes. He supported himself against the door, said, "So you've got him at last," and fainted. And the second was the sound of many feet rushing into the house above, and a burning voice calling, "Tuck! Tuck! Michael, where are you?"

Michael flung open the door and shouted, and in a moment the basement was filled with people: strangely Duncan Murchison was there with the Commissioner, the District Attorney, a group of policemen, and Bunney with Agamemnon in her arms.

"I had to bring him," she explained, "because I thought perhaps if we couldn't find you he could. But we saw Michael's boat and the handkerchief tied to the tree on the path below."

Michael held Tuck in his arms still. She leaned her head against him and the room whirled round her.

Duncan Murchison had raced across the room and dropped down on his knees beside the sick man from the inner room. He lifted the drooping head and held it on his arm.

"My God," he said brokenly, and there was deep silence at the sound of his voice. "It's my brother, Edgar."

The District Attorney frowned. He took his hand from Michael's shoulder. He turned and surveyed the key rigid figure of that other, gowned in white and tied against the wall.

"That's who is that?" he cried. "That?" said Michael, and reached out to tear the operating mask from the angry face. "Oh, that is Dr. McElin."

Elston Sport Shop Is Now in New Quarters

Four years ago when Walter T. Elston opened up the store at 279 Fair street, stocking it with sporting goods, toys and the like, some wagged their heads and said it was "too bad," he couldn't possibly make a go of it, there wasn't enough demand, the location was wrong, etc.

Since that time "Walt" has been steadily proving that the critics were all wrong, so much so that just recently it was found necessary to move the Sport Shop into new and larger quarters in the remodeled Cordis Building at 270 Fair street, a few doors down and across the street from the old store.

A visit to the new store this morning disclosed that even these much more commodious quarters are none too large for the mammoth stock that is being carried for the holiday trade. There is much more convenient shopping space, but outside of that everything is filled, including besides wall and floor cases the two large basement rooms. In fact, Mr. Elston said that he had been forced to rent additional basement space for storage in a building further up the street. The store itself is one of two show cases have been finished off entirely new stores on the first floor of the building, with new maple floor, while woodwork and trim are in attractive birch trim.

Celebrate Unique Birthday Party

Tuesday night a most enjoyable birthday party was held by the employees of the local National Biscuit Company, at the Agency on Ten Broeck avenue, celebrating the fifth birthday of the "Famous Ritz Crackers," which were introduced to the public in November, 1934.

The employees arrived at the local branch about 6:30, after which they were entertained by the local manager, B. J. Wood, with a theatre party. After the theatre they returned to the local office, where a table was artistically decorated, in the center of which was a large cake with five lighted candles. Ritz crackers, with cream cheese, crullers and cider were served.

During the party a suggestion was made that a Ritz Club be formed, with a meeting and party to be held each month at the different employees' homes. Manager B. J. Wood seconded the motion, with the request that the first meeting and party be held at his home in December, at which time a Ritz Victory Dinner would be served, to celebrate November as the largest month in sales of Ritz since this cracker was first introduced. The suggestion was quickly accepted by all the employees.

After the party, the employees formed two bowling teams and enjoyed the remainder of the evening at bowling.

The horse and buggy days are satisfactory to Dr. John Edmund Haddon, Bath, N. Y., who spurs automobiles on his daily rounds after 40 years' practice.

WAR AT SEA: How Major Conflict Is Waged

MINES VS. SHIPS

NEWEST WEAPON in sea warfare, according to British charges, is a magnetic high explosive mine dropped on a parachute from an airplane. Here is artist's conception of the method. Presumably the mine sinks, then rises and explodes when a steel-hulled ship passes.

SUBS VS. SHIPS

GERMAN SPECIALTY is submarine warfare. Here is what one of dreaded U-boats looks like when it rises to tell doomed ship's crew to take to lifeboats before ship is torpedoed. Sometimes no warning is given. Germany is supposed to have had 65 subs at start of war.

THE RESULTS

TORPEDOED by a submarine, a French tanker burns and sinks. U-boat sinkings during early part of war were at lower rate than during World War. Major casualties were the British battleship Royal Oak and aircraft carrier Courageous. After a lull early in November, toll of ships rose sharply as mines sank many near British Isles. Total before the war was three months old, was more than 150 ships, one-third of them neutrals. Berlin and France together have about twice as many submarines as Germany. But Allies capture ships, take them to port rather than sink them. German ports are harder to reach.

UNLESS

WEAPON AGAINST MINES is the minesweeper, which cuts mines loose, then explodes them with gunfire. Sailors here haul in the float which marks position of the sweeping gear.

WEAPON AGAINST SUBS is the depth charge, which caves in hull when dropped near sub. Picture shows one exploding.

Baker Will Open Sanitarium in Wurts St. House

Dr. J. S. Baker of this city has leased the former Sweeney residence on Wurts street, at Spring street, and plans to open the property as a private sanitarium the first of the year.

Dr. Baker for the past several years has been actively identified with the operation of the Sahler Sanitarium, recently disposing of his interests to Theodore Peck, who is now operating the sanitarium.

The former Sweeney residence is one of the show places in the downtown section of the city. The house is built of Hudson river bluestone from the former Sweeney blue stone yards and for several years past had been used as a tourist home.

Judge William D. Cunningham, formerly of Glenville, is the owner of the property.

Dr. Baker said today that he plans to make alterations and renovations to the residence to adapt it to his needs and that he expected it would be ready for operation as a sanitarium on January 1.

Patrolmen Honor Wood and Present Retirement Gift

presided and in a few brief words he complimented the retiring chief on the splendid record he had made during the many years he had served the city as chief of police.

Adopts Resolution

President Leonard read the resolution that the association adopted unanimously as follows: WHEREAS, J. Allan Wood, on November 30, 1939, will retire from the position of Chief of the Police Department of the City of Kingston; and

WHEREAS, his retirement will bring to an end more than thirty-one years of service in that position; and

WHEREAS, we, the members of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, know better than can be known to others that during his service Chief Wood devoted himself to the duties of his high and exacting office, with unflinching courage, with unremitting industry and with sound, practical wisdom and judgment;

RESOLVED, That the members of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, do make and subscribe this minute of our pride in Chief Wood's distinguished record; of our respect for his gifts of leadership; and of our warm affection in which we shall always hold him, because of his superior qualities as a man, and it is further

RESOLVED, That Chief Wood be elected an honorary member of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association of the City of Kingston.

Presented With Token

President Leonard then turned the meeting over to President-elect Peter Keresman who, on behalf of the association, presented the retiring chief with the traveling bag.

"Chief Wood," said President-elect Keresman, "you have always been actively interested in the police department as your long and honorable record clearly shows. On behalf of the members of this association I desire at this time to pledge continued loyalty to our superior officers and to the city at large, and we will continue to cooperate with every organization whose aim is to make Kingston a better city in which to live."

Chief Wood Replies

Chief Wood in accepting the gift thanked the association for the honor it had conferred upon him in making him an honorary member. He said:

"Fellow officers and my good friends, Regardless of what anyone may say or think of this retirement, it is a difficult task and it is not a pleasant duty to turn one's back upon a job which has been my first consideration—day and night—for seven days in the week for these many years. And let me say to you—that no matter what there may be of work awaiting me—I shall still be daily with you in your work for my heart and soul are bound to the Police Department of the City of Kingston. I am leaving them here. To you I am saying only an official good bye. You and Chief Phinney will, I know, take these things with you—these things which have made for the police department of the City of Kingston a record of high standing.

You men have no need to be told where your duty lies. Your oath, your Federal, State and City constitution and laws, and your rules and regulations will be your only consideration in the performance of that duty. Through all these years the law has been the law, the support of the law is essential. The support of the law is essential. They cannot run the department successfully alone.

Your friendship to me is one of the most pleasant memories I take with me as I again enter civic life. Your many demonstrations of respect have deeply moved me, and while I am leaving as your Chief, my feeling is that the friendships formed here by constant association are substantial and lasting. It is difficult to skim over the years of close association with you in the department. My gratitude goes out to you. I wish you all an abundance of happiness and success.

I thank you for this resolution which sets forth your regard for me personally and for the service I have been permitted to render. I also appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me by making me an honorary member of your worthy organization. All of this shall be cherished forever."

OFFICERS' TRIBUTE

President Leonard before adjourning the meeting spoke briefly. He recalled the long years that Chief Wood served the department as its head and said that Chief Wood held the respect of every resident of the city.

"Every man, woman and child who has had any dealings with the police department during your long and honorable term as chief of police know that you have always been interested in any effort that would promote the welfare of the city, and all who have come into contact with you during these years have realized that you have always been a gentleman."

Those Present

The meeting was one of the largest meetings ever held by the association. Those present included Acting Chief Charles Phinney, Lieutenant James V. Simpson, Acting Lieutenant Ernest A. Boss, Sergeant Frederick Stoudt, Acting Sergeant William J. Leonard and Patrolmen Reardon, Hess, Robert F. Healey, Peter Keresman, Schoonmaker, Fallon, Relyea, So-

New Head of Police

This morning Charles Phinney assumed his duties as acting chief of police, replacing Chief J. Allan Wood, who retired at midnight after 31 years of service as head of the local law enforcement department. Acting Chief Phinney has been a regular member of the Kingston police force since December 7, 1909. On February 16, 1917, he was appointed a sergeant, and September 1, 1937, was made a lieutenant.

Two Policemen Celebrate Anniversaries

ELBERT L. SOPER

Today Sergeant James P. Martin and Motorcycle Officer Elbert L. Soper are celebrating their 22nd anniversaries as members of Kingston's police department. They assumed their duties on December 1, 1917.

Before he became a policeman Bert Soper was employed as chauffeur by the late J. Graham Rose, while at the time Jim Martin donned the blue he was employed at the Brewster powder plant in Port Jervis.

Officer Soper at one time was a member of the Kingston paid fire department, and in earlier years had been employed by the former widely known firm of Forsyth & Davis on Wall street.

Sergeant Martin for years was employed as clerk in the grocery store of William F. Walter, when the business was located on lower Broadway, and later assumed a position with the powder company where he was employed at the time he took the civil service examination for policeman.

During the 22 years that the two men have been members of the police department they have made excellent records in the performance of their duties.

various ordinances adopted by the council. Later on December 7, 1909, he became a patrolman and served as such until February 16, 1917, when he was named a sergeant of the police department, which position he held until September 1, 1937 when he became senior lieutenant of the department.

Chief Phinney when seen in police headquarters this morning said that he expected to carry on the same policies of administration inaugurated by Chief Wood. "Any success I may have enjoyed as a police officer of Kingston I owe entirely to the training I had under Chief Wood, who was one of the highest types of police chiefs in the state."

Chief Phinney said that he did not expect at this time to make any major changes in departmental administration.

As a token of the esteem in which he is held by his fellow officers he was waited upon this morning by a delegation from the Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

headed by President Edward J. Leonard and President-elect Peter Keresman, and presented with a huge basket of flowers. Chief Phinney also received a large bouquet of flowers from William E. Hinkley, a well-known insurance adjuster of this territory.

In accepting the gift Phinney spoke at some length and urged that the men give him the same loyalty they had given Chief Wood during the many years he had been head of the department. Chief Phinney also paid a high tribute to the retiring chief.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission will meet Monday evening to examine and certify the names of Charles Phinney as acting police chief, and Sergeant Ernest A. Boss as acting lieutenant to the Board of Police Commissioners. Both men have been temporarily appointed to the positions they now occupy.

The civil service board plans to hold promotion examinations for the position of lieutenant and sergeant of the police department early in 1940.

Justice Catches Up

Philadelphia, Dec. 1 (AP)—Justice had overtaken a middle-aged widow today just as it caught up with 12 others linked with a ring that trafficked in death for profit. Mrs. Millie Giacobbe was convicted last night of slaying her husband by a jury that recommended life imprisonment.

War, lack of jobs and racial antagonisms head the list of items about which high school students are most concerned, according to a recent Y. M. C. A. survey.

East Meredith Farmer Dies In Car-Train Crash; Two Local Men Are Part of Crew

Lavern Stewart, 44, East Meredith farmer, was instantly killed, while Joseph Dent, 23, of East Meredith, was severely injured when the light truck driven by Stewart was struck by an Onondaga-bound passenger train of the New York Central railroad, on a private grade crossing about two miles east of East Meredith about 1:12 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Riding in the rear of the truck were Dent and Horace Dunham, 18, who was employed by Stewart. Dunham saw the approaching train in time to leap to safety. He said he shouted "Jump" to Dent, but the latter failed to respond to the warning.

The train was in charge of Conductor Emory Crow of this city. Engineer Wallace Shultz stopped the train within three or four car-lengths and members of the train crew hastened to aid the victims. Finding Stewart beyond help, they used a strap as a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood from Dent's leg, severed below the knee. They put him aboard the train and rushed him to the Fox Memorial Hospital in Onondaga.

C. A. Potter, Kingston trainman, remained at the scene while the train sped to Onondaga. Examination of the locomotive in the Onondaga yards revealed that the front of the locomotive was slightly damaged by the collision with the truck, which was practically wrecked.

Dent suffered a depressed fracture of the skull, amputation of the left leg and multiple bruises. His condition is serious.

The three men were crossing the tracks in the truck to complete a woodcutting job started the day before.

Child Playing With Matches Starts Fire

Georgianna, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kline of 30 Sycamore street, while playing with matches this noon, set fire to some clothing hanging on a rack nailed to the wall in one of the bedrooms, according to the fire department, which was called on a still alarm.

Before the firemen arrived Mrs. Kline had picked up the burning clothing and thrown it out into the yard.

Duty Fire Chief Fred M. Leverich said that the only damage to the house was from smoke.

McCutcheon Home Opens This Week

This week-end marks the opening of the McCutcheon Home by Richard H. McCutcheon. He is thus re-establishing a business firm that for a quarter of a century enjoyed an enviable reputation for peerless quality and personal service.

The original McCutcheon Home was founded by the late Richard H. McCutcheon in the early 1900's and later conducted by his widow, Katharine Larkin McCutcheon, until her death in 1930.

Mr. McCutcheon's mother and father were graduates of the Renouard Training School for Embalmers in New York. The present training school is under the supervision of Dr. Charles A. Renouard, acclaimed dean of modern embalming.

Richard H. McCutcheon is a graduate of La Salle Military Academy of Oakdale, L. I. He attended the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., and was graduated from the Renouard Training School for Embalmers in New York. In conjunction with his professional training, Mr. McCutcheon was actively affiliated with Bellevue Hospital and the Morgue of Manhattan. Recently he has been associated with the Arthur J. Oates Funeral Home, East 83rd street, New York, an establishment widely known in the metropolitan area for nearly a century. During this time Mr. McCutcheon was designated to represent the Arthur J. Oates Funeral Home at post-graduate clinics specializing in the restorative art and preservation of the human body.

In designing The McCutcheon Home, he has carefully preserved the simplicity of a true suburban home without curtailing the facilities necessary for offering his clientele the ultimate in funeral homes. He has embodied both in the interior and exterior the most desirable features of periodic and modern motifs.

The interior of the home suggests an atmosphere of warmth, simplicity and richness. The spacious repose rooms with their blended panel walls, supplemented by ivory woodwork, are further enhanced by the luxurious burgundy broadloom. Throughout the furnishings are in harmony with the mellow warmth of mahogany furniture upholstered in silk brocade and imported damask. In appropriate contrast is the smoking lounge with its modern American tubular furniture against a walnut background. The preparation room is modern in treatment with its white tile walls, enamel operating table and porcelain fixtures.

The McCutcheon Home will be open Saturday and Sunday, December 2 and 3, from 10 a. m. until 9 p. m. for inspection.

Story of Copper Told to Kiwanis

The story of the manufacture of copper from the time it is mined deep in the Anaconda mines, sometimes as deep as 4,000 feet under the surface, up until it is ready for the market in various finished products, was depicted Thursday to Kiwanis by motion pictures.

ed George Owen of Albany, who produced a film, "The Story of Copper", which showed the numerous processes which copper must go through from the time it is taken from the mines until it becomes ready for market. Methods of refinement were shown, the manner in which the copper is shaped into many uses was shown and a portion of the film showed the method of drawing the copper into pipe as well as the manufacture of brass pipe in the American Brass Company plant.

Among the guests presented were Program Director Ezra McIntosh and Leon Bernard, manager, of the Kingston broadcasting station which will shortly go on the air. A brief statement of the work on station WKNY was given. The station will operate on 1550 k. c. wave length and is powered to be received over a distance of 30 miles. The studios will be in the Governor Clinton Hotel and the transmitter house and tower is on Yarmouth street just off Albany avenue.

China gets her relief from Albany by airmail. Three Chinese sent a check for $882.09 that was addressed to Madame Chiang Kai Shek, wife of the generalissimo. The money will help clothe orphans of the Sino-Japanese war. It was raised in Albany, Troy and Schenectady.

War Tough on British Women

World Turned Completely Upside Down Through Evacuations.

LONDON.—As always, war has turned woman's world completely upside down. To men it has brought an exhilaration and a sense of achievement; to the older men a renewed youth and elasticity, to the younger men a sense of responsibility and of their worth to the nation. All ages alike rejoice in their uniform and patriotic fervor keeps their spirits high.

But to the women it is all rather bewildering. To the average wife and mother unable by domestic ties or other restrictions to offer herself for active services it is a question of standing by, coping with all the difficulties and inconveniences, presenting a cheerful front and hiding as best she can the heartache of it all.

Only two months ago life was pursuing its normal course. Now woman's world has become devastated. She is up against a thousand problems she never thought she would have to face.

Difficult Choice. Evacuation has proved so far perhaps the greatest problem. At a moment's notice thousands of women have had to choose between husband and children; between her duty to the man who is to her sometimes a grown child, and her duty to the real child who must at all costs be protected from the mental and physical effects of war.

To the government concerned only with the safety of its people, it all seemed so easy. Human emotions, it appeared, played no part in their scheme.

But the problems of evacuation were far beyond the mere question of safety. Homes had to be broken up at short notice, not only for a brief spell, but for the "duration"—whatever that might mean.

Wives who had always queened it in their own domain had to become unwelcome visitors in the homes of others, feeling distressed, unhappy and immeasurably lonely, conscious of the fact that their menfolk were being neglected, and obsessed with the feeling that it would be very difficult after long break to take up the threads of domestic life where they had been laid down.

Turned Topsy-Turvy. On the other hand, those who had to receive the evacuated women and children had to have their lives turned topsy-turvy. Maiden ladies were landed with half a dozen children; careful and prim housewives had to receive careless and thrifty types of wives.

So evacuation has created problem after problem seemingly impossible to solve.

In dress, woman has gone "sensible." Perhaps the whole trend of war worry is responsible, perhaps merely the idea that she must look her part, but frills and flounces have been put aside, high-heeled shoes stowed away for post-war festivities, curls have been cut and trimmed to look businesslike rather than artistic, and neatness and practicability appear to be the order of the day in all things of dress.

To the younger generation the war is of course at this stage an immense thrill. Dancing and movies and theaters have had to be renounced, but they have been replaced by the thrill of war work of various kinds, by attractive uniforms to wear and a great sense of responsibility. Business girls trip along carrying their gas masks at all sorts of jaunty angles and even the darkened streets provide adventure rather than difficulty.

Village of 500 Will Go Through Tax-Free Year

MILTON, MASS.—This community of fewer than 500 persons gets a free ride on the financial merry-go-round for the next 12 months.

Mayor Kenneth H. Simmons told the city council there will be no taxes next year. Reason: The city books are balanced and the state will pay for the ride in the form of state liquor board and highway department allocations.

This relatively simple solution is a permanent one, Mayor Simmons declared.

Furthermore, he added, it was feasible in any city in the state—large or small.

"It's easy," Simmons said. "Just let the state pay your way."

The municipality of Milton is so small that its population is not even listed on the maps. Yet the complete elimination of municipal tax levies will reduce the taxes of property owners about 35 per cent.

Recruit Set Out Leave

And It Lasts All Night

REGINA, SASK.—The disconsolate figure of a young recruit, sitting on a curb with his face cupped in his hands, aroused the interest of the policeman on the beat. Half an hour later the constable returned. The young soldier was still sitting in the same position.

Thinking the youth might be ill, the constable inquired if anything was wrong.

"No, I'm all right," the recruit said. "I just got all-night leave."

The Napoleonic wars and the World War are the only conflicts that had any material effect on the world price level. The minor wars of Great Britain, France, Germany, and the United States, as well as the Russian, the Japanese, the Sino-Japanese wars, and the recent Spanish Revolution, had little effect. Whether the present war will be a major or minor conflict is not yet certain.

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING NEW

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt caused a hub-bub when she unexpectedly dropped in to hear 50 minutes of the testimony before the Dies house committee investigating un-American activities and after the session she was pressed closely by reporters in this impromptu press conference in a hallway of the House office building at Washington. "The first lady was 'disappointed,' she said, because 'I thought I would hear something new and there was nothing that we don't already know.'"

Hunters Fire At Army Planes

Santa Ana, Calif., Dec. 1 (AP)—Sheriff Jesse Elliott said today federal agents were investigating some terrible-tempered duck hunters hereabouts. Elliott said the hunters became enraged when army pilots, testing two military airplanes, flew close to their blinds, frightening the birds. At least one hunter fired at the low-flying ships. Elliott added, blowing a hole in the wing of one and damaging the other superficially. A law in Texas says it is unsafe to haul a load of more than 7,000 pounds on a truck, except when the truck is going to a railroad station, when 14,000 pounds may be hauled.

U. S. Acquires Two Peaks Under Waters of Alaska

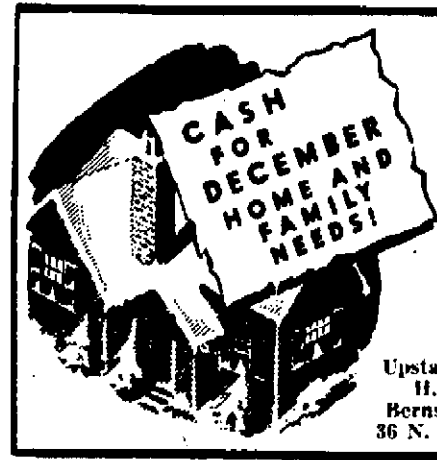

SAN FRANCISCO.—The United States now owns two brand-new 9,000-foot mountain peaks. Announcement of the discovery of these two new peaks was made here by Capt. E. W. Eikelberg and Ensign H. G. Conerly, of the geodetical ship Guide, which has returned after seven months of exploration off the Alaska coast.

The fact that the two peaks are at the bottom of the Pacific and that their tips are 2,000 feet beneath the surface of the sea in no way detracts from their importance, Eikelberg said. The peaks were discovered a few weeks after that portion of the ocean's bottom had been the center of an earth-

The "possession" peaks, known to mariners, are situated about 350 miles west of Cape Flattery in a little explored part of the ocean.

Discover Human Bones in Ancient Mt. Circe Caves

ROME.—Prehistoric caverns and human bones, including a well preserved skull, were found on Mount Circe, where Ulysses' sailors, according to Homeric myth, were turned into swine. This hill, on the coast south of Rome, near Gaeta, some months ago yielded a Neanderthal skull. The new caves were discovered by a hotel keeper who was looking for a place to keep wines. The grottoes, which converge toward one large cave, contain many human remains. The skull is in good condition, with the teeth intact.

Colonials and Troy Fight It Out at the Auditorium Tonight

Colonials Seeking Revenge; Troy Out For Another Win

Capacity Crowd Expected for 'Thriller' Because of Keen Rivalry Between Clubs

A basketball game that should be the classic of the American League to date is tonight's Kingston-Troy match at the Municipal Auditorium, starting at 9:15 o'clock.

Barney Sedran's Colonials, who were smothered under by 10 points when they went upstate to meet the Trojans, hope to reverse the decision.

The Haymakers, who won 34-24 are confident that they'll be able to repeat. "Well do it again," said Manager Marly Friedman, Sedran's old court mate, after the game in Troy. "Sedran has a good club, but I think we have the number of those Kingston boys. They don't run away with the league this season."

That Troy victory was the second league surprise in a row, the Haymakers having outpointed the Jersey Reds previously to start on the Glory Road. Friedman's quintet has won two and lost three games so far, and the Colonials are in the 500 class with a 3-3 record.

Furnishing the action for Troy tonight will be combinations picked from Polch, Stanton, Boardman, Synott, Bass, Frankel and last but not least Mickey Kupperberg, the former Jewel player who started for the Trojans Wednesday, scoring 14 of their 34 points.

The Favorites

Kupperberg, because of his stellar performance in Troy, and Corky Stanton and Dave Bass, former Colonials, are expected to be the big favorites tonight. Bass managed the Kingston club two years ago, replacing Pop Morgan-week when the local committee took over the team.

Sedran will have all of his regulars ready for tonight: Kaplan, Johnson, Reiser, Fleigel, Murphy, Berenson, Kramer and Fitzpatrick. He gave the Colonials a severe verbal thrashing after their loss at Troy, blaming loose defensive play for the setback.

Indications are that the auditorium will be packed to capacity with rosters for both clubs. "Troy fans are expected to come to Kingston confident that their favorites will win in spectacular fashion, and Kingston patrons of the cage sport have been ordering reserved seats at a rate which presages a full house."

Remember Last Week!

Last week's victory for the Colonials over the Jersey Reds brought about by Bernie Fleigel's last minute field shot, that sailed almost the full length of the court, furnished the fans with plenty to talk about and this is one reason for estimating a crowd tonight, together with the keen rivalry between the clubs.

Thursday's game at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., turned out as a victory for Baltimore. The score, Baltimore 32, Wilkes-Barre 35.

Army, Navy Both Are Confident

Philadelphia, Dec. 1 (AP)—The city tingled with excitement today as football forces of the Army and Navy trained sights on their annual gold brail classic.

Encamped at suburban country clubs, the rival contingents staged dress rehearsals—each grimly confident of winning tomorrow's skirmish on the dyed greensward of Municipal Stadium.

Downtown hotel lobbies began swarming with the vanguard of the 100,000 persons who are expected to see the game.

Everyone seemed bursting with good spirits save the speculators. They were glum over the dictum that tickets sold at more than $4.40 each would be turned down at the gate.

Resorting to such subterfuges as the "gift" of a ticket with a hat sold for as much as $10, the scalpers made modest headway. Still, many fans were chary of such dealings, and so left the smart boys behind the proverbial eight ball.

Army Favored 7-5

The betting gentry installed Army as the 7-5 favorite, but the odds from the navy yard were willing in quite a few cases to lay even money that their colleagues from Annapolis would scuttle the West Pointers.

Vying with the service teams themselves as top attraction was the scheduled appearance of President Roosevelt.

You can take your choice but to the Middle's coach, "Swede" Larson, it's still a Navy year. The Army mentors ventured not a word about the outcome. They merely smiled.

150-Year-Old Paintings Found Under Wall Paper

Murals apparently painted in the days just after the American Revolution have been uncovered in an old Rockport, Mass. home. Buried under four layers of wallpaper for several generations, the murals, quaint in design and of antiquarian value, were found when decorators cleaned the walls preparatory to repapering.

Mrs. Marian J. Cooney, whose family owned the house for many years, was unaware of the murals' presence. The stock of new wallpaper she had selected to cover the small parlor's walls never will be used.

Identity of the artist who created the work is not known, although Mrs. Elta S. Moore, 80 years old, recalled that the builder, George Knowlton, had a daughter who was artistically inclined.

The paintings were believed to have been executed about 150 years ago as the two flags crossed over an apple tree and a brace of doves, contained 13 stars and 10 bars each. Figures in this mural and those on the other three walls are stiff, but attractive.

Most interesting of the panels is one depicting a farm worker at a well who lifts an oaken bucket to his lips as a small blue dog looks on.

American Homes

Out of every 100 American homeowners 50 buy their first house "to have a better place to bring up the children." The next greatest motive is just a sentimental longing "for a home of our own." Investment runs a poor third as a reason for home ownership. The average American couple buy their first home when they have been married five years, when the husband is 32 years old and the wife is 29. The average price paid by the families studied was $4,899, almost exactly two years' salary, the average annual income reported being $2,452. New homes were built by 31 per cent of the families questioned. Sixty-nine per cent purchased older houses and there were children in 61 per cent of the families at the time their first home was purchased.

Yesterday's firing cost Rutgers its first defeat as the Brown Bears scored twice in the final period for a 13-0 decision.

One conference championship was settled as Colorado captured a wild 27-17 fracas from Denver in the Rocky Mountain's Big Seven.

Alabama's low-starting steam roller flattened Vanderbilt 39-0, once-beaten North Carolina walloped Virginia 19-0, and Florida escaped with a 7-7 tie against Auburn when the game ended with the Tigers on the two-yard line.

Little San Jose State preserved its place among the nation's undefeated and untied leaders with a 12-0 victory over Drake in one of the Pacific coast's several night games. Undefeated but often tied UCLA finished strong for a 24-7 decision over Washington State in another.

Alternatives for Chi Grid Future

Chicago, Dec. 1 (AP)—Can the University of Chicago, which has not won a Big Ten game in three seasons, absorb another gridiron beating such as the merciless one taken by the Maroons this fall and still remain in major college football?

The answer, supplied by inquiry on the campus, apparently is an emphatic "no."

After the close of a campaign in which the Maroons scored only 37 points to 308 by opponents, the university now is pondering these alternatives:

(1) Drop football completely.

(2) Make a determined effort to lighten the schedule so that, within four years, only one Big Ten team would be met.

(3) Make no change in policy and the hope that teams will improve and regain, in some measure, the gridiron ranking that was Chicago's in the days when it produced some of the finest teams and stars in the nation.

Right now Chicago is on a "schedule spot." For several years President Robert M. Hutchins and his aids have tried to lighten the gridiron schedule but in 1940, when the Maroons had hoped for a comparatively easy program, they collide with these major foes: Purdue, Michigan, Ohio State, Virginia and Brown.

Under President Hutchins, Chicago firmly has held to the view that football is only one of 13 competitive Big Ten sports. The records show that in the last six seasons Michigan has won 25 titles, Chicago 14, Illinois 9, 5-4 and Minnesota 7, they being the pacesetters. Schools authorities think it makes no difference that those Chicago championships came in tennis (5); fencing (5); water polo (3), and gymnastics (1).

Trainer Tom Smith moved Kayak out of a spacious double stall and put the mighty 'Biscuit in when the latter arrived late at Santa Anita to prepare for a possible "come-back."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)
Cleaned Out
Pittsburgh—The "no checkee, no washee" rule didn't work so well for Yee Hong, laundry owner.
A man walked in, handed him a paper slip on which Chinese characters were scrawled. But the check hadn't come from Yee's place.
"No laundry," said Yee, shaking his head.
"Gimme your money then," commanded the man, producing a gun. Yee handed over the $11 in his cash drawer.

Free Water
Salina, Kas.—Free water in December is the annual Christmas present to patrons of the municipal water department.
"Water running through meters now is free," said City Manager H. L. Brown. "We want people to use it freely on lawns, so that the city will be more beautiful next summer and better able to stand continued drought."

Relatively Troubled
Philadelphia—Explaining to a trial board why he was absent from his job, Fireman John Carroll blamed it on "in-laws."
Six of them, he said, moved in on him in one day.
"I was so worn out remonstrating that I couldn't go to work," he explained.
The board took the matter under advisement after a member observed that a man with so many in-laws deserved special consideration.

Anybody Here Seen Levy?
Salt Lake City—A San Francisco woman is seeking a man whose middle name is "Levy" and who draws a salary of $10,000 a year.

The woman wrote to the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce and gave two further clues. First, the man was born near Fillmore, Utah, in 1876, and his predecessor in office (office not identified) was a Republican.

Job Lot
Chicago—Mr. and Mrs. P. Jay Davis ought to get a wholesale rate when their children have their tonsils out today at a Chicago hospital.
There'll be seven patients—Mary Virginia, 16; Jay Jr., 14; Myrtle Ann, 11; Germaine, 9; Robert, 8; Richard, 6, and Paul, 4. There are two more Davis children, Naomi, 26, and Walter, 20, but they won't be in the tonsil group.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

SOCIETIES • CLUBS • PERSONALS

More of Cast Named In League Revue

One week from tonight, Friday, December 8, the curtain will rise on the "Television of 1939," the Junior League revue.

For the forthcoming wedding in this show, John Burgevin, as the groom, has Burton Davis as best man, and Messrs. Harry R. LeFevre, Jr., Everett Fessenden, Jr., Leon Quick, Edwin Burgevin, David Derringer, Charles Walden and Preston Hasbrouck as ushers.

Interest in the bachelor dinner, which will precede this marriage ceremony, is so alive that these young men delight in rehearsing every evening, and judging from the hilarious sounds that emerge from the American Legion building where rehearsals are being held, a rollicking scene is anticipated.

Those who know, tell that this frolicking is quite typical of all such dinners.

Even a stag party does not face Miss Snooks, played by Miss Anna Hecover, fashion editor, who arrives and finds material for discussion in the fashion attire of the guests. Miss Snooks will bring to notice some delightful variations in the usual cut of custom made wearing apparel for the men.

Besides these young men who will participate in the wedding, the bachelor dinner introduces a freeman whose part will be played by Sherwood Davis, and also Simpson of the Governor Clinton rap room.

The proceeds of this revue will be used to carry on the social service work of the Junior League, which for the past two years has been operating a Welfare Bureau. Tickets for this entertainment, which will be followed by dancing to the music of Roger Baer and his Cats, may be procured from members of the Junior League or by phoning 2771.

Play at Bard College

For the second production of the year the Bard Theatre will present "The Ascent of Faith," an outstanding poetic drama by W. H. Auden and Christopher Isherwood, two foremost English poets. The play will be given December 7, 8, 9 and 10.

The extraordinary demands which a play of this type makes on the theatre designers and technicians are being solved in an interesting and unusual manner by the Bard Theatre staff. Three dimensional settings will be supplemented by projected light patterns. This technique represents a decidedly new field in stage presentation.

The cast includes the Misses Anna Minot and Nancy Kimberly of New York city; Miss Mary Moore, English and drama teacher of Rhinebeck High School; and Wesley Phillipson, Peter Hobbs, Fred Sharpe, Randall Henderson, Robert Bartlett, Frank Overton, Robert Habenman, Arnold Burroughs and Robert McQueenie from Bard. The play is being staged by Paul Morrison.

Hart-Nardi

The marriage of Miss Mary R. Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Hart of Goldrick's Landing, to Louis V. Nardi, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nardi of East Kingston, took place at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in St. Colman's Church, East Kingston. The Rev. Daniel J. Fant of Yorktown Heights, former pastor of St. Colman's, officiated at a nuptial Mass. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin with full length veil falling from a turban and caught with orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book covered with gardenias and baby's breath. Miss Hart also wore her mother's wedding slippers in honor of her parents' 34th wedding anniversary which was being celebrated yesterday. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Collette L. Hart, who was gown in hyacinth blue with an ostrich feather hat of matching color. She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses. Vincent Bernardi, nephew of the groom, acted as best man while Maurice T. Duffy, brother-in-law of the bride, and Frank J. Tiano, brother-in-law of the groom, were ushers.

Concert at Vassar Saturday

The Vassar College Glee Club, under the direction of John Peirce, professor of music, will give its first concert of the season in Students' Building Saturday evening, December 2, at 8:20 o'clock. The club will be assisted by the 70-piece Columbia University orchestra, made up of both men and women players, under the direction of Herbert Dittler, a member of the Columbia faculty, and visiting associate professor of music at Vassar, teaching violin. The concert will be open to the public, and no tickets will be required for admission.

The program will consist of Brahms' "Tragic Overture," Debussy's "Blessed Damozel," and six Slavic folk songs by Josef Suk. ### Looking Up Other People's Friends

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I had two very good friends in college who have since married each other. They are now living in a town where I am soon going to visit. My husband wants me to look up his friends, and feels, even though it has been years since he seen either of them, that the whole background of their friendship is such that they would be very happy to see me. Will you please tell me how to go about this.

Answer: I think your husband should write to them and say that you will be staying at such a hotel, and for how long, and that he hopes they will be in town and that you will be able to meet them. Otherwise, you write a note from your hotel and explain who you are and say that "John" wanted very much to have you meet them while you are in town. You can say that you hope it will be possible for them to come to see you, or suggest that if more convenient you will be very glad to go to see them. In other words, make it all sound very simple so that they won't feel they are obliged to do any special entertaining for you.

Fifty Notes for a Present?

Dear Mrs. Post: More than fifty people together have sent us a most beautiful six coffee and tea service for a wedding present. These people do not represent any one organization club, but are friends who wanted to give us a present to last the life. We are both deeply touched by this evidence of their friendship and nothing would be too much trouble now to show them how much we appreciate it. I suppose I should write a separate note to each one. Even the great impulse that makes me want to write fifty notes is not strong enough, however, to make me how to word each one differently. Will it be all right to the same note to each one?

Answer: The fact that you are willing to write fifty notes shows amazing appreciation but further than changing a word or two, such as lovely, beautiful, is no other change that you can make. The notes may be very short, but I'm afraid you have to write notes! Messages on visiting cards will not, in a case like this, seem appreciative but notes almost short would be sufficient.

Invitations to Receptions

Dear Mrs. Post: Are all invitations to receptions engraved?

Answer: Yes, they should at least be printed to simulate engraving. (Released by The syndicate, Inc.)

Decline in Stock Prices Continues

Wednesday's pronounced downward trend in stock prices on the New York Exchange continued Thursday. Following overnight news of actual hostilities between Russia and Finland the New York market opened sharply off and losses were extended throughout the morning session. Of the total for the day of 883,840 shares 540,000 changed hands in the first two hours of trading when prices reached their lowest point. At the close the Dow-Jones averages registered a net loss of 1.20 points, to 145.69; rails were off .58, to 31.70 and utilities were down .16, to 24.92. During the last ten days of November, industrial averages have shown losses for every business day except two, the index losing six points during that period. The rails have shown a gain but only on November 20; and the utilities but once, on November 25, when the gain was but .01 point. During that same time the Dow-Jones composite average of 65 stocks dropped 4.36 points.

As the securities market yielded to war influences commodities rose, staples staging the widest rise in two weeks, the Dow-Jones index being up .79 point for the day, largest since November 3. Wheat prices gained one to two cents a bushel at Chicago to the highest levels in almost two years. December wheat going to 91 1/2 cents a bushel. Corn was 2 1/2 higher, to 53 1/2 cents. Heavy foreign buying sent cotton up five to 16 points. Flour prices were advanced ten cents a barrel in New York.

Freight car loadings for the week ended November 25 totaled 675,516 cars a drop of 94,888 from the preceding week, but still 114,858 above the figure for the same week last year. The total was 108,526 per cent of the average for the same week during the past ten years.

For the first time since early in September spot copper yesterday dropped below 13 cents a pound. Primary producers continued to quote 12 1/2 cents a pound for domestic delivery, having held prices down during the recent period of heavy buying.

Barron's index of the physical volume of business for last week showed a gain over the previous week, despite the holiday, rising to 88.2 per cent of normal from 87.8 the previous week.

The ICC, by a five to four decision yesterday, ruled that freight rates on a long list of manufactured goods from the south should be on a rate substantially the same as within the north. At present these rates are 105 to 160 per cent of those in the north. The decision is a major freight rate victory for the south.

Continental Baking declared a special dividend of $2.50 in addition to regular quarterly of $2 on preferred stock. The company also authorized another payment of $1, making total disbursements three times those of 1938.

Subscriptions for the $500,000, 2 per cent nine to 11 years treasury bonds, offered Tuesday, exceeded $6,000,000.

Davis' Condition Is Reported Worse

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 1 (AP)—A change for the worse was reported today in the condition of J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, former New York policy racket attorney who is under treatment for an intestinal ailment.

His physician said Davis was "seriously ill". He entered the hospital Monday under an assumed name, accompanied by his bride, the former Hope Dare, Broadway show girl.

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—A quiet morning rally in the stock market today failed to follow through on advances of fractions to 3 points were halved or cancelled in late proceedings.

Dealings lagged throughout, with transfers for the full session at the rate of approximately 600,000 shares.

Near the final hour moderate gains were held by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, du Pont, Philip Morris, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Great Northern, Loft and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit.

Backward were Montgomery Ward, Goodrich, Westinghouse, Boeing and Johns-Manville. Scandinavian bonds, weak yesterday, came back substantially. Commodities generally pointed moderately higher. Foreign securities markets displayed reviving tendencies.

The better action of stocks was attributed partly to reports the administration and financial quarters were considered some sort of program for leading or American securities held abroad in order to lessen pressure of liquidation from this source. British embassy officials at Washington denied their government was considering such a move. Selling from abroad has been going on for some time and, while relatively light, was believed to have been a restraining market influence.

Wall Street was still depressed by the outbreak of the Russian-Finnish war, fearing complications which might further dampen United States overseas trade. Offsetting this to some extent, though, was the hopeful domestic and industrial picture.

Tilting forward in the curb were Duke Power, Aluminum of America, Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service.

Finns Name New Government With Rytty as Premier

headed the Bank of Finland since 1923 and is a member of the progressive party.

Reports received from Moscow that a "people's government of the Democratic Republic of Finland" had been formed in Terijoki by Leftists and Rebel Finnish soldiers evoked ridicule in Helsinki.

Terijoki is the Finnish town nearest where Russian troops first crossed the border above Leningrad yesterday and Tass, official Russian agency, announced formation of the new regime.

(Terijoki apparently was in the Russian zone of occupation; a regime formed there presumably would have the approval of the Russian authorities. There was no indication whether Russia intended to accept the Terijoki regime as the government of all Finland.)

The Rytty cabinet was formed during a day in which Russia extended her attacks on Finland, bombing Helsinki and many other cities and machine-gunning civilians in the streets of the capital.

The conflict raged from Finland's arctic tip around to her southwestern shore, where batteries of the stronghold of Hangoe were reported to have sunk a Russian warship as the defenders stood off a daylong attack from the sea.

New Raids Today

Helsinki, Dec. 1 (AP)—A great squadron of Russian bombers raided Helsinki and its suburbs at 1:15 p. m. (6:15 a. m., EST) today, dropping bombs and strafing with machine guns.

The raid still was in progress at 2:55 p. m. (7:55 a. m., EST). Finnish anti-aircraft batteries were reported to have shot down several of the raiding planes which were flying low. One bomber was said to have crashed as the result of rifle fire from a hill occupied by civil defense guards.

Smoke rising in various sections of the city indicated new fires. Many wooden buildings were aflame in the working class section.

It was said in this region that Soviet warships yesterday had dropped leaflets urging the proletariat to revolt against "bourgeois tyranny."

Officially 30 were known to have died in yesterday's raids alone. Casualties in the countryside still were undetermined.

Among yesterday's bombing victims was a Finnish scientist, Vaino Sihvonen, professor of physicochemistry at the Helsinki Technical Institute. His colleague, Doctor Aaro-Vuorinen, also was killed.

While civilians were taking punishment, Finnish troops were stubbornly holding strategic points. They thrust back the Russian offensive at Kaivola.

A new government has been formed but not announced. Air raid sirens had sounded earlier in the day, but no bombs were dropped and an all-clear signal ended the alarm after the inhabitants had hurried to cover.

Normal Activities

The populace emerged from air raid shelters and quickly resumed normal activities.

opposite end of the 800-mile Finnish-Russian frontier.

Red warplanes' bombs had set fire to part of Helsinki, taking at least 40 lives, and had partly razed three towns in Finland's 20-mile-wide corridor to the Arctic ocean.

Red troops had swarmed across the border onto Finnish soil at points all along the frontier.

Island Is Seized

The Red fleet had seized the Finnish island of Seiskari in the Gulf of Finland and had begun shelling Viipuri (Viborg) and other cities and towns on the Finnish coast.

Before the resignation of the cabinet, which had negotiated fruitlessly for weeks with Russia on Soviet territorial demands on Finland, a Moscow broadcast had threatened annihilation of Helsinki unless an agreement were reached by 3 a. m. today (8 p. m., EST, Thursday).

A representative of the United States legation here forwarded word of the government's resignation to Moscow and it was expected that the American embassy there would relay it to the Kremlin.

(Russia's contention has been that the presence of Finnish troops near the Russian frontier close to Leningrad threatened the security of the Soviet's second city and Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov declared just before hostilities began that a settlement could not be "conditional upon the bad faith of the present Finnish leaders.")

(The resignation of the Finnish cabinet was regarded in some circles as a move for an armistice and a new premier was expected to attempt to restore diplomatic relations.)

It was believed a new cabinet would be formed by tonight. Vaino Tanner, finance minister in the old cabinet who participated in the Moscow conferences, was mentioned as a likely successor.

Has Not Wanted War

"Once and for all," declared Elias Erkko, foreign minister in the Cajar cabinet, in a broadcast last night, intended for the United States, "I wish to say that Finland has not wanted war, has no desire to be a threat to anyone and has no desire to become the instrument of a third power."

Erkko thanked the American people for their support "in the hour of our adversity."

"Finland intended to live in peace," he said. "Despite all our efforts we are the victims of an attack. All that is left for us is to defend our liberty, our existence with all the means at our disposal."

"Despite all this we have not resorted to war blindly but we remain ready to work for a solution of the dispute by conciliation."

Erkko's broadcast was not heard in the United States. Refused radio relay through Germany he spoke on a relay through Stockholm but attempts to pick up his voice in New York were unsuccessful.

The secret, extraordinary meeting of the diet, Finland's one-chamber parliament, last night decided to accept the United States offer of her good offices in seeking a peaceful solution.

(The United States yesterday delivered a mediation offer also to the Russian government but the feeling in Moscow was that nothing would come of it.)

Guardsmen Enter Final Phase of Field Training

This Saturday and Sunday the national guardsmen of the 156th Field Artillery under the command of Colonel Otto Thiede, will bring to completion the extra field training which was ordered by the state adjutant general in addition to the two weeks field training the artillerymen put in at the regular army maneuvers at Plattsburg this August.

The problem for this maneuver will concern night occupation. On the two previous week-end maneuvers surveys have been carried on by the officers of the regimental staff, who have been busy assembling all necessary data for this week's problem.

The maneuver will start in the vicinity southwest of New Paltz around 3 o'clock Sunday morning and move in a northerly direction.

The 156th Field Artillery will be supporting a brigade of infantry advancing toward Rosendale and it will be the duty of the artillery to offer support when the infantry encounters the enemy infantry advancing from the north.

So that effective support can be given, the artillery will take advantageous positions under the cover of darkness and be ready to launch an attack at daybreak. All vehicles will travel without lights to prevent detection by the enemy forces. White strips of cloth on the tailboards of each truck and station wagon will be the only guide for the drivers to follow.

This maneuver will bring together over 800 officers and men. The 1st Battalion will assemble in Kingston Saturday afternoon and the 2nd Battalion will form in Newburgh. Shortly after midnight the battalion will leave Kingston and meet the 2nd Battalion in the vicinity of Gardiner.

The two Kingston units, First Battalion Headquarters Battery and Battery A will enter the field with a full complement of men, it was announced last night by Capt. Charles Behrens as both batteries have obtained full enlistment as authorized by the recent increase of strength.
